

ABSTRACT

An apparatus having an output register coupled to a content addressable memory (CAM) array. The output register may be configured to output data based on a delayed clock signal. A programmable delay circuit may be coupled to receive a reference clock signal and generate the delayed clock signal using one or more delay elements.